NEWPORT:

BY GEORGE T. HAMMOND, At 123 Thames Street:

FRIOAY, JULY 20, 1859.

Pencil Notes of a Tour to the Whit Mountains of New Hampshire. IV.

We came by stage through the "Pink" ham Notch" to North Conway, over a road constructed with great care, along the course of a wild stony creek, which we crossed and recrossed upon rustic bridges amidst a scene of awful grandeur and sublimity beyond description.

North Conway is a pretty village, which has become for a few years past the resort of strangers, who desire the benefit of mountain air in a quiet spot where hoard may be obtained on reasonable terms. There are three large boarding houses, and other places still more quiet and home

The Kiarrage mountain, is the first object of interest to visitors of N. Conway. It is not difficult of ascent, and commands a fine prospect. Here is also Echo Lake. the Cathedral, and Diena's baths, which can all be seen in a drive of two or three hours. In the last mentioned the water falls over immense boulders of solid granite, in distinct cascades, which have worn deep smooth basins in the solid rock, as perfect as the finished work of the most faithful artisan. The forest sanctuary, and the artists' falls, are beautiful and favorite walks within a mile of the village.

From Conway, we shall take the stage to Crawford, in the White mountain notch, and after that to Franconia, and the Fluxe. You, chall hear again in a few days from the party in the White Mountains,

EDITOR'S BOOK TABLE

SPARKS FROM A LOCOMOTIVE, or Lile and Liberty in Enrope, by the Author of "Belle Brittan's Letters." Derby & Jackson New York. C. E. Hammett Jr. Newport.

A chatty off-hand book that speaks the practiced Editor drawing his pen at a minute's notice on anything or any body that passes. The first part of the title is most expressive, the second a shade too ambitious, unless we suppose that Life stands for the good living which the author enjoys so much and details so minutely, and and the Liberty for the freedom he takes with the names and private affairs of his various hosts.

Those who have read "Belle Brittan" much pleasanter when we know it comes from the genial man of the world, (Col. Fuller formerly of the Evening Mirror) than when it wears the ill fitting robes of a lady. As a bit of elever and slightly impudent gossip, the book will have its brief day and deserve it. For Sale by B. T. Sheriden, Agent for Newport, and at all the principal Hotels.

TO RESUSCITATE THE DROWNED.-A this is the season for bathing and for fatal accidents in the water, we prepare the following directions for the guidence of those who may need to use them. We believe they embedy all that is material in restoring a drowned person, though of course a person who has been long submerged would require the treatment of a careful physician ofter being revived:

Use no harsh means, such as rolling on a barrel, rolling on the ground, hanging by the heels, or any of the relics of a turbar-

Have the body immediately stripped and wiped dry, and either carried to a bed or placed upon dry binakets, with plenty of covering ready to retain the heat that you may succeed in rousing.

Then commence inflating the lungs in such a manner as to make an artificial breathing; this may be done by holding the nose of the person and torcing through the mouth into the lungs sufficient air for a natural breath, immediately expelling it by an upward pressure just below the ribs. applying the ripe of a bellows to one ostril, while holding the other nostril and mouth firmly closed.

This inflating of the lungs is the sheet anchor, and must not be intermitted, except to turn the head and body, upon the side to let out any water that may be forced into the threat and mouth.

While this is the interest in the side.

while this inflation is going cu, let us many warm, dry hands be rubbing the limbs, as can be employed; or let the body in bot flannels, and cloths wrung from hot water be applied; at all events get and keep the body warm.

These two points—getting the lungs to breathing and the body warm—are the; main chance, and in fact the only chance, and the treatment must not be stopped for anything else until the person is given

This method of treatment is so simple that it can be conducted by any person o common sense, and should not be discontinued for at least five or six bours

It may be that the application of electricity, after the other treatment is fairly as work, may serve to rouse vitality, but of this we are in doubt, and believe it should not be too freely used.—North and South.

An "Italian wife" who begard for a living in Cincinnati recently ran off with un-other man because his "professional skill" in the art of begging was greater than her husband's. She took a bout $1,000 with her. The husband expresses profound regret, as she was one of the best beggars he ever saw, in Europe or America.

COMBAT BETWEEN TWO FROGS .- A few weeks since some masons were at work re-pairing Hollis' oil factory at Somerville, Mass., when they became the witnesses, of a singular combat of about an hour's duration, between two monster buil-frogs, in-habitants of two pools in the rear of the building. They came totth from their re-spective puddles about 11 o'clock in the torenous, and approached each other cau-were about a not apart, when they jumpwere about a not apart, when they jump-ed at each other and commenced the light. They struck, bit, and clumbed furiously, and when a fall decided a round, both would draw off and pull for a moment, when they would renew the combat.-After about in hour spent in uninterrupted fighting, with the exception of two or three brief rewith the exception of two or three brief re-spites, each crawled off to his pool and disappeared. Neither was "exactly dead," but both were "kinder gin cout." The fight itself was singular enough, but the fact that it was witnessed, but not inter-ed with, by some thirty or forty frog spec-tators, of all kinds and sizes, adds to the noveity of the meident. Our informant, (Mr. Edward Grace, officer of the U. S. Courts.) says that at the beginning of the Courts, says that at the beginning of the light the rogs assembled about the fight-ing ground from the surrounding pools, attracted doubtess by the noise made by the combatants, and that they continued peaceable speciators of the 'mal," occasionor alto interrupting it by excited creaking, but no time approaching the parties engaged in it neuter than within two or three leet. When the contest was ended they nearly simultaneously themselve. nearly simultaneously departed.—Boston Traveller.

> DEAL GENTLY WITH THE LITTLE ONES. -A child when asked why a certain tree grew crooked, replied, "somebody trad upon it, I suppose, when it was little."

"He who checks a child with terror, Stops its play, and stills its song, Not alone commits an error, But a grevious moral wrong, Give it play, and never foor it,

Never, never break its spirit;
Curb it only to direct.
Would you stop the flowing river,
Thinking it would cease to flow?
Onward must it flow forever;
Better teach it where to go,"

I WON'T TELL WHAT SHE SAID.

BY THOS. JOHNSON. I gazed upon the dancers
In a grand old festive hall,
And among the witching maidens,
I crowned one queen of all—
Like a strange, celestial fairy,
Before my eye she fied,
And her accents charmed and pleased
But I won't tell what she said.

That spring I met the maiden,
And I saw here eye of blue,
Asit lit her check all glowing,
With the many colored hue;
She wove for me a garland,
From Flora's downy bed,
And I said that I was happy,
But I won't tell what she said.

We walked one autumn's even, Beneath the culm moonight.
And the merry stars were watching
O'er the solemn world of night—
The wind I thought was signing
For the flowers that were dead,
And we talked and laughed a long time
But I won't tell what she said.

Not long after, when the shadows Were purpling on the west,
A tiny hand's soft pressure
Made me feel that I was blest;
Her blue eye flung the glances
Of an angel heart and nead,
On a soul that loved too wildly—
But I won't tell what she said.
